

Arizona's Law Is Most Extreme Anti-Immigration Measure—For Now

Published on Thu, May 06, 2010

Arizona's law is—to date—the most extreme and has gone the furthest, but many states and localities have been introducing and passing immigration-related bills for several years, says Michele Waslin, a senior policy analyst at the Immigration Policy Center.

“There is a lot of frustration around the country because Congress, the federal government, has not acted on immigration reform. Everyone knows there is a problem, and it isn't getting any better,” she says.

Published in the Campus Progress

Source URL:

<http://www.immigrationpolicy.org/newsroom/clip/arizonas-law-most-extreme-anti-immigration-measure%E2%80%94now>